Method #1: The Cold Initiation

This is probably the most common approach. It's where the guy suggests having sex with his partner – almost as if it was an idea.

Normally, I instruct guys to not do this type of initiation – especially if the sex life isn't all that good. When the sex life is suffering, it's normally an indication that other things need to be addressed.

But the truth is, there's nothing wrong with this type of approach – if everything is in place – and the sex life is exceptional.

When a guy does a “cold initiation” - there are 5 possible outcomes.

Outcome #1 - She says no. She isn't turned on. And she isn't excited about the idea of having sex.

Outcome #2 - She says yes. However, she really isn't turned on. And she isn't excited about the idea.

This normally means your sexual value is low and/or you didn't successfully build sexual tension.

In situations like this, her indifferent attitude makes it almost impossible to “energize her” through some sort of foreplay process.

There's like a 98% chance that she's going to be waiting for it to be over. Technically, this is no different than a rejection (Outcome #1).

There are many reasons why a woman would say ‘yes’ (even though she can't wait for it to be over). For example, she may want to:

- Avoid hearing her partner complain
- Avoid hurting his feelings
- Avoid him thinking that she is having an affair
- Avoid another argument
- Avoid depriving him of sex
- Etc.

Outcome #3 - She says yes. She really isn't turned on or excited about the idea. But on some level, she expects to be turned on.

Big difference!

This is a situation where she isn't aroused (biologically or psychologically) YET, however, the guy has established a track-record of getting her aroused and making sex enjoyable (good foreplay + good sex), so in the back of her mind she knows that she'll end up enjoying the overall act.

However, (even if you have Sexual Value) the success rate of her saying 'yes' isn't as high as other initiation methods.

Outcome #4 - She says yes and she is excited about the idea. Her face lights up! She becomes psychologically aroused just thinking about how much fun she is about to have.

This is obviously the best of the 5 possible outcomes – with this type of approach.

An amazing sex life is required.

However, an amazing sex life doesn't guarantee this type of response (outcome) every single time. Just because a woman isn't 'ready to go' instantly (at all hours of the day), doesn't mean there is something wrong the sex life.

So don't measure how great your love life is based on how often you get this type of response.

Outcome #5 - She says No, while she was somewhat aroused. [OUCH!]

Many women are sensitive to how a man initiates sex. In other words, could have ended happening – if he'd taken the time to further arouse her or initiate a more effective type of initiation.

If the message she 'gets' from his attempts to start a love-making session suggests that he just wants sex or he wants to rush quickly to the intercourse part, then it's very possible that she may become instantly turned off.

I still haven't figured out what's worse between this outcome (#5) and Outcome #1.

You decide.

Method #2: The Sexual Gateway

This was first introduced in Super Seduction Power [SuperSeductionPower.com] – it's basically a non-sexual activity that enables you to transition smoothly to the act of sex.

It's normally an activity that involves some sort of "touching" (i.e. non-sexual physical stimulation) which allows you to build sexual tension in a very traditional way.

The basic examples are back rubs, foot massages, lotion rub downs, hot oil massages, hair washing, bathing together, any type of full body massage, etc.

As you can imagine, the 'gateway' activity is highly desirable to women. And because of that, you do not want to destroy its precious value.

Even if you haven't gone through any 'conversational sexual tension building process', the sexual gateway alone can easily double, triple or quadruple the amount of sex you are currently getting.

Overnight, it can instantly transform a guy who gets sex once a month in his relationship into a guy who gets sex 3x a month. That's huge!

To make this an effective part of your 'arousal-building' arsenal, it should appear to her as a "treat", "a spa" or something unquestionable valuable to her – something she would rarely turn down.

Also, don't initiate sex every time you do a gateway.

And don't provide her with the pleasures of a gateway – just because it's an easy transition into love-making.

On an unexplainable (or too-long to explain) level, the more you enjoy providing her with the pleasures she gets from the 'sexual gateway' (while not expecting it to lead to sex), the more effective it will work to dramatically increase the likelihood that she'll crave sex afterwards when you smoothly present it as an option.

So even though it's framed as a method to initiate sex, trying to initiate sex every single time is one of the quickest ways to ruin it, because pretty soon it will register in her mind as a selfish method for you get sex from her.

Here are tips to enhance the Gateway.

- Have a stimulating conversation about something she enjoys talking about.
- Fully listen to whatever she is talking about
- Give her well-timed compliments
- When you are massaging her with hands, give her a variety of pressures, speeds, and temperatures
- Use different types of skin stimulation (a feather, your hand, a scrubby-type thing, your lips, etc.)
- Add things to create a mind-calming environment (light playing music, candles, dim lighting, etc.)
- Gather information from her (or other women) on how to make the massages & foot rubs more exciting

Once she has been warmed up, you can present the option to engage in love-making non-verbally with gestures that communicate your desires.

Every woman knows what “the look” looks like. If she has been warmed up the right way, she’ll smile and her actions (i.e. more aggressive kissing and “grabbing”) will indicate an obvious acceptance.

The idea with this type of initiation is simple

When the two of you are doing something neutral (like watching TV) do the gateway first, so that the process looks like:

Watching TV → Initiate a Sexual Gateway Activity → Initiate Sex

instead of...

Watching TV → Initiate Sex
