

Questions To CR James

Issue # 001

Copyright © 2009 CR James & SSP Media

Note: You have Redistribution Rights to give away this book for free. Or, you can use the ebook as a free bonus or premium and give it away. It's your choice. The only restriction is that you can not make changes to the contents of this ebook.

If you feel that someone you know can benefit from the information, don't hesitate to share it with him. They'll thank you for it.

Hey CR James..

I read your piece about "increasing your sex value arouse your wife." At one point she really really valued having sex with me cause I wasn't sexually available like I have been now.

I wanted to know if it's possible to still fix things (for her to value having sex with you) if you already have became too available?

If so please let me know. I want to buy a book of yours but I need to know this answer to this question first. Thanks man.

Sincerely,
[Jack].

Hi [Jack].

Yes it's very possible.

In general, all you are doing is "changing her perception" of you from Not-Sexually-Desirable to Sexually-Desirable.

Technically, it's no different than if she saw you are being a Kind Person (meaning you "did things" that demonstrate kindness)...and then over the course of a few months, you began to "do things" that demonstrate that you are Mean (Not-Kind)...

Sex is just a "result".

When a women is excessively horny for a particular guy it's simple a "result" of him "doing things" that are desirable (according to her).

(Every woman is different. That's why it's a good idea, to know what traits she finds desirable)

So the first step Michael, is realizing that it's possible... (which is pretty obvious.)

Then you have to figure out "what to do" in order to get change that..

Basically, that's going to come down to "doing things" that women psychologically respond to (from a desirability standpoint) PLUS doing things that move her to a mindstate of sexual desire...

So to answer your question, it's very possible to get a woman to crave sex from you!

- CR

Hello James

Got a question

Wanted to find out how do you identify needs or what a person wants to see, hear, experience so that you can be a better lover.

Are there any questions or ways of finding this out?

Thanks

Hi [Tim]

Here's what you can do my friend.

Find out what famous people, types of guys she thinks is desirable. get her to name as many as possible...

You can even get her to include past lovers...

Then ask her what "traits" about them makes them desirable. for example a woman may say "i like him (or those guys) because he's FUNNY, CARING, AMBITIOUS."

Then after that, you'll want to either memorize or write down her answers, so that way you always know.

That way you can 'say things' to project those traits...

So here's some "other" questions you can ask to get those traits:

1. When you first started to fall in love with me, what was it about me that you really liked?
2. When you first fell in love with a guy for the first time, what was it about him that you really liked?
3. What movie have you watched that had the sexiest/most-desirable character in it? What was it about that character that made him sexy?

Depending on her interests Sunil, you could ask about characters in novels, TV shows, etc.

-CR

Hi

I have a question, which you might want to add to your documentation. I am sure I am not the only one bothered by my question. From what I have seen, you really know your stuff.

Scenario: My first girlfriend (I was her first two) of a 6 year relationship (which ended 5/6 months ago) was a virgin and so was I (before we met). How do you get over the fact that you are 99% likely to only end up with a non-virgin next?

I understand that when the hormones are going you don't even think about it, but afterwards and before it seriously bothers me.

In fact, it's what has kept me from pursuing my ex, who I still think about and want back every day. She went in rebound with a awful trashy looking ugly guy of another race shortly after dumping me (cause I begged her back - I've learned all about that).

I just don't understand why no one talks about this in these various books on the subject of relationships...

Hope to hear from you.

[Lou]

Hey [Lou]

If I'm understanding you correctly, you are asking how do you get over the fact that your next girlfriend is not likely to be a virgin?

The answer is simple. (Not to be harsh but....) Just deal with it.

More specifically, you should focus on qualities that are important to you.. (For example, honesty, attractiveness, compassionate....whatever qualities matter to you...)

If for whatever reason you MUST have a virgin, then you should seek out a girl who is a virgin...

I hope that makes crystal clear sense...

-CR

Hey CR James

What's up, I have a question for you. I always hear people say that a (mother knows best) and that if your mother doesn't like your girlfriend the relationship wont work, I have always seen it in movies where the mothers seem to have a special radar for picking up a girl who is not right for the son.

I am not saying that I believe everything that I watch in the movies because Hollywood really paints a bad picture most of the times of what a husband or boyfriend should be.

I do get a few ideas from them though. I have been having this relationship with this girl for three years and everything is perfect and we love each other, but I have been hiding it from my mother because she is too nosy and she always spoils things up for me, I just don't want her to get involved that's why I have been hiding it from her so long.

Over the years as our relationship started to intensify my mother found out what was going on because we all go to the same church.

My mother talked to her a couple of times and it went ok nothing bad happened. Mr James I just want to know if there is some truth to what I said earlier about (mother knows best) or is it just a myth.

What's up [Chuck]

It's a myth. Mother's don't always know best.

A "mother" is simply a woman who has decided to have (or ended up having) a child.

That's it.

I have never seen any evidence (in any form) that links "having a child" (i.e. becoming a mother) with increased cognitive abilities enabling the woman to perform superior decision-making (for herself and others).

- CR

How about the scenario where the wife actually insists she is not sexy - and I pretty much agree with her in terms of her behaviour:

- 1. wont dress sexily
- 2. wont wear sexy underwear - she thinks she will look ridiculous - but she wont
- 3. has rules about sex - not in the morning, etc

I can't really introduce conversations about sexyness as they seem out of place. She would really question a copy of cosmopolitan suddenly appearing...

So whilst for most women your ideas sound perfect, I am struggling to implement

Hey [Don]

Are you saying that she won't accept "sexy" compliments?

If that's the case, you might need to use non-sexparts & trait compliments. For example, try telling her she has a "sexy smile" – "she has the sexiest feet you've ever seen on a woman" – "she's creative and you find that to be sexy"...

It seems like you need to assist her in re-building her self-image.

This is not likely to be an overnight process... It can be an ongoing "campaign" of constantly sprinkling these messages until she feels sexy (at least when she's around you)

Saying "you would look great in a thong" maybe too much of a belief-stretch for some women, so you have to work with the realm of what she's likely to accept.

The cool thing is the feeling of 'having the sexiest toes in the world' is STILL the feeling of sexiness...

At its core, this is all about "belief change" - getting her to change the way she sees herself and helping her with her self-image.

-CR

[I have] some questions about persona selection, but first let me thank you for your insights. I had a mean girlfriend, but now she's admitting that she was "playing" me like all the other guys in her past. Now she knows that I can have any woman i want and she's happy I chose her..

Anyway I wanted to know if you have any tips or ideas on how to control my sense of humor and bring it out more smoothly on command.

She likes it when I'm playful with her and when she starts being playful with me I don't always have a snappy comeback for her right away.

I have a brilliant sense of humor but its hard for me to turn it instantly like a faucet. Any tips?

Hey [Andrew]

There are a few approaches...

One approach is to practice making relationships between things. It's not a direct way of being funny, but it helps you develop the "core skill" of being funny on demand.

For example: How is a book like a computer [Answer: They both store information]...

This of course isn't funny...

But if someone in the office said: "My computer takes forever to get turned on!"

And if someone else screamed: "Yeah that reminds me of my girlfriend", then it's only because his brain has the "core skill" at making connections with things...

And then a few people may start laughing.

So this is something you can practice doing.

Look around your house and randomly select 2 things, and then try to connect them in some way...

Your brain is designed to work like this, the more you do it the better you'll get at it.

By the way, if no one in the office laughed at his joke about his girlfriend, it's not because the joke wasn't funny, it's probably because they all own copies of Super Seduction Power!

Ok Seriously.

If you practice making connections between things, then you'll end up making witty comments on the fly - which women love...

How ironic is this....

As I was typing this, my wife just came home and said she's about to go upstairs because she's sweaty. I said "I'm sweaty, too."

She said: "Do you know what that means?"

Me: "We need to go out and buy some more soap?"

She: (laughed) "No. It means we can take a shower and get clean together."

Me: "But isn't more fun to get sweatier together?"

She: (laughed) "You're right. How about we get sweaty first and then get clean"

So we had some adult time together just now and it all started with 'in the moment' funny conversation — but to be fair, I really have no way of knowing what would have happened if I never said the funny/witty comments.

It's possible that she could have already had sex on her mind, but either way, it doesn't change the fact that women love it when a guy can say funny things on the spot.

It's not just about saying something funny, it has to be relevant to what's going on (in the moment)

If you're on a date with a woman and you're making witty comments (in the moment) you're going to score much more points, then if you were to say something like:

"Ok you're going to love this one. There was a farmer. A weasel. And a bear...."

<< By the way, if you're not "naturally funny", then one of the best books on this subject is at SuperLaughPower.com - it breaks down everything and actually teaches guys how to be funny - in the moment. A lot of books on this subject are garbage. This is the only one I would endorse!]

Plus, another HUGE benefit of practicing making relationships between unrelated things (i.e. the computer and the book) is that it helps with your "response skills".

For example, if you say something that increases your sexual value and the woman challenges you, being able to provide a timely response is the difference between being seen as desirable and being seen as average.

For example, let's use a basic example. As you may already know, it's possible to get a woman to become more attracted to you just by talking about times when OTHER WOMEN have found you desirable.

Framing yourself as a "desirable character" works like crazy (especially after you have done everything else right) if you know what you're doing. So let's say you do this and it seems to be working in your favor.

But then out of nowhere, she "challenges you". She says something like: "Well you said ABC, what about XYZ?...when did she do ABC?..."

Basically, she starts bombarding you with questions. After that, there are only two possibilities:

1) You can start stuttering with the deer-in-headlights look on your face and miss an amazing opportunity to "cash-in" on your story.

2) You make a witty and timely comment that makes her laugh. You appear intelligent, funny, comfortable with yourself and enjoyable to be around.

So many guys want to know what to say, but it's not what you say that really works, it's how you respond (to what she says). It's the kind of stuff that you can't prepare for.

Women HATE it when a guy says obviously rehearsed lines and things that she has heard a million times. That's why the real secret is your "response skills".

For some guys the book at SuperLaughPower.com could be the "missing link". However, if you're already funny (in the moment) then start paying attention to how she smiles at you immediately after you said something hilarious...

I hope that helps

Take Care

CR James

CR James

crjames100@gmail.com

Take Care...

Warmly,
CR James

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to be 'CR James', with a long, sweeping flourish extending to the right.

SuperSeductionPower.com

SuperTonguePower.com

SuperApproachPower.com

GetHerBackFAST.com

PirateSeduction.com

