

Interesting Questions

<< Maybe You've Been In This Situation Before >>

Issue # 013

Quick question even though it seems obvious to me... But just to be sure is commenting on her appearance such as nice shoes or I like what you tried to do there the same as saying You're pretty?

Can you give me some insight into this?

Hey Glen

It can have the same impact for many women...

The power of a compliment is based:

1. who it's from
2. how original it is (and how important originality is to her)
3. how she interprets it.
4. Etc.

For example, you can say "nice shoes" and she could take it as the "designer" did a great job creating the shoes and the affect is pretty would be pretty low...OR you could say "Wow. You did a good job picking out those shoes" and it would register more as a compliment to her (i.e. her decision making)...

-CR

Hello CR James

I've recently ordered your super seduction power set, and I am hoping to get some advice for my situation.

I'll try to be brief.

I'm 42, in fairly good shape, fairly good looking, divorced officially 3 years ago.

I have no problem meeting and getting girls into bed. I've been doing it a fair amount over the past year, just having fun.

I'm not looking for a long term or too serious relationship with these women, and I date 2 or three at a time (not together though, heh)

So here's the deal, I have a 7 year old daughter with my ex wife (she is Chinese), and they moved to China this past August for my daughter to go to school there for language purposes.

Prior to that, we have always lived together, except maybe for 6 months when we first separated a few years ago.

I visited in December for 3 weeks, and they are back at home right now since Jan 21 for three weeks during her school break, leaving next week back to China.

They will be back in the USA with me in July for the summer months.

When they are here in America, we live together. Our daughter does not know we are divorced. Mom sleeps in her own room, just like she always has, even when we were married.

So, the upshot is I want my ex-wife back, or at least, I want to have sex with her when she is living with me in America.

When I was in China in December, we were all at her parents house, and we never had sex.

The first night she was back here in America, we had sex, and it was very good. I know she enjoyed it as well.

But, she has rejected to have sex after that. She tells me she only wants to treat me as a "brother", and claims that she does not need "guys or sex".

She has told me these things before in years past. When she is here in America, she is definitely not having sex with anyone else.

When she is in China, she has some romantic relationships, I'm pretty sure, though she claims she isn't interested in those things any longer.

By the way, she is 40, kind of overweight, but still good looking.

She has been traveling back and forth like this for many years already, and we have always had sex when she is here, both before obviously, and after the divorce. (btw, I initiated the divorce because I was tired of her being gone so much, and I met a Swiss woman and we got pretty serious, but it didn't last, partly because I still loved my ex)

Also, I think she would be embarrassed about getting back together officially from her family and friends since they know I divorced her, and they aren't super crazy about me (though I treat them pretty well).

Anyway, I don't care about being "officially" back together as far as her family or friends know.

So, I'm not hoping to get re-married to her any time soon. All I really want, is for us to be a couple when she is here in America.

I can't stand living under the same roof with her, loving her sex so much, and not getting it.

She let's me come into the bed with her at night and in the morning, and give her back rubs, and even butt massages, so I've been doing [something], but so far no dice. When I get too intimate with the touching, she gets upset and "sends me to my room".

I've only been trying your stuff for a very short time, so I'm reading it carefully, and trying to do the right things. I don't expect anything before they leave next week, but I'm thinking long term, for when they come back in summer for some months and beyond.

She thinks I'm a great father (which I am), and I take care of her very nicely when she is here in America. She certainly likes our arrangement from her end.

I don't know why she is being so difficult on the sex issue, because if I was getting that, I would be totally satisfied with how things are, and she knows that.

I don't want to "blackmail" her and tell her she can't stay with me unless she gives me romantic attention when she is here, and I want our daughter to have the good experience of us living all together as a family. I just don't want to be having this family relationship and not getting sex from my "wife"

She knows I see other women when she is not here in the U.S., but I never see them when she is here, or show them to her or our daughter

Please give me your best advice and strategy to go forward with, and I will follow it to the letter. Remember, I'm thinking long term here. If you have any questions to clarify the situation, don't hesitate to ask.

Thanks Man, I'm counting on your sage wisdom here.
"Will"

Hey Will

Interesting situation. I think the solution can be found in understanding why was she ok with having sex post-divorce before?

Along with...

Why did things changed on her part?

You strike me as someone who really understands the concept of having a long term strategy...which is great... I wish more people thought like that...

But in the effort of 'crafting the right strategy' your success is going be largely based on really understanding what's going on in her mind...

If I were to guess (based purely on the information you provided) I would say that her friends are a major influence... if they don't like you, you have to create some sort of sub-strategy that accounts for that...(whether it's getting them to like you – if possible – or making it so that she's not as influenced by them...but it's something that can't be ignored...

Women will often meet a guy they're not too thrilled about... and suddenly find him to be much more desirable - just because her friends think he's great guy...unfortunately, this works both ways...

So how do you develop a strategy for that? Well, it depends on what they have said about you. It depends on why they don't like you...

Your ability to get her to want to have sex with you is going to be based on "what she thinks about you" (how you are perceived)... and what kind of affect you have on her?

-CR

<http://CRJames.com>